

Left Out:

By: Benjamin David

Left Out is the story of twin brothers, David and Benjamin Bragg. Benjamin believes that all paths to God are sacred, and David believes that the only way to get to Heaven is to accept Jesus Christ as your Personal Savior, renounce your affiliation with the Democratic Party, and declare war on anyone who would take ‘Christ’ out of Christmas.

The day comes when nearly a billion people disappear from the Earth—raptured. Most from the United States South. ‘Left Behind’ are Atheists, Liberals, Democrats, Humanists, Feminists and Catholics (Catholics don’t believe in The Rapture), and Benjamin Bragg.

On that day, Benjamin makes a discovery: those who have stood in opposition to progress every step of Earth’s evolution—are gone.

Meanwhile, in Heaven, things don’t go as expected. Despite the splendor, David and his friends make a gruesome discovery. They’re forced vegetarians (because they can’t kill anything)—there are no more ideological enemies (because there are no Democrats there), and they don’t like each other, but they’re stuck with each other—forever and ever—hallelujah—hallelujah!

This is not what they read in the brochure.
